Chapter 1 by AnimePup Paws

I have hemophobia (rare).

It's a phobia of blood. It's scary and it's red and it's scary and it's red and it's scary because it's scary and it's red and IT'S SCARY AND IT'S RED and it's leaky and drippy and scary and red when it comes out of your body and it's scary and it's red... repetition of what I just said

And it's SCARY and it's RED... (actually blue) but LOOKS red!

Chapter 2 by -

*Give the name of your phobia, and describe why it's scary, etc.***

I have Sweetpotatophobia... It is extremely rare!!!

It is the phobia of Sweet Potatoes. They are orange, and gushy, and taste like heck. They are absolutly disgusting and the mere sight of them is enough to gag a someone. To have to eat one would be like sentencing someone to an eternal stomach flue...

So if you have Sweetpotatophobia, DON'T even so much as look at a Sweet Potato!

It is a phobia of Hillary Clinton. It is the fear of having a liberal, pro-murder-babies, pro-same-sex-marriage, democratic, grandma as President of the United States. It is a fear of America being ruined by a criminal, someone who should be behind lock and key... But isn't.

So, if you have Clintonaphobia, give it to as many people as you can! This is a rare phobia that can be transmitted to others... So catch it - before it's too late!

Chapter 4 by -

Oh my, you won't believe it. But I'll tell you anyway. I have Disneyaphobia.

Yes, that's right. You didn't know there was such a thing did you? Well, there is - and I have it.

It is the phobia of anything made by Disney. The fear of gushy romances, fake girls, unrealistic guys, same old story lines, and disobedient kids. It is the fear of having an agenda pushed on me by the Media. The fear of becoming their puppet on a string, that they have programmed to dress, eat, talk, and think like. The fear of them taking away individuality...

Disney has an agenda. They pump it in to children from the start. Every movie (almost) they make has an underlying trick. It is professional propaganda that, unfortunately, much of society buys into. So, Disneyaphobia is real, and I am not the only one who has it.

Chapter 5 by N8

I have Thalassophobia. This is the fear of the ocean/sea.

Truthfully, this fear hasn't affected me for a long time, but has occurred more recently. The idea of being in the middle of an ocean, lake, river, sea, etc. scares the hell out of me.

It all started in my grandfather's man-made pond. I succumbed to peer pressure and jumped in. That, that was the moment that I started to panic. That was my first, true panic attack. My heartbeat felt like it was going a million times faster than usual. I felt like I couldn't breathe while I was in the middle of the pond. I felt weeds touch my feet, and I couldn't help but think about the possibilities of what could be beneath me. Talking about this incident makes me light-headed and anxious.

I don't know what first brought it on, but it was a scary, terrifying thing to me.

I have arachibutyrophobia. I just... I can't be the only one. It's the fear of peanut butter sticking to a plate. I mean... I just... it looks weird and wrong and I HATE it. because then you have to try and get it off and if it's the really sticky kind it takes FOREVER and then I feel like you're wasting peanut butter because it tastes delicious. And all those thoughts run through my head at once when I see it and I start to feel nauseous... and, now I can't be in the same room as a plate with peanut butter sticking to a plate.

Chapter 7 by That Grammar Geek

asapiophobia-

The dislike, hate, or fear of someone who is not as smart as you; the fear of ignorance and/or stupidity.

I am an asapiophobe, because I am TERRIFIED when someone doesn't know that there are exceptions to the "'i' before 'e' except after 'c'" rule. For mine, theirs, and the world's sake. Ugh.

I also have a fear of soup. It's so weird looking! Blah.

Chapter 8 by -

Okay, you know that feeling you get when you realize you are on the last page of a novel? That sickening sensation that your imaginative world is about to end? That the fantasy world of your dreams is going to shatter?

I have a fear of that. It is Novendophobia. It is the fear of one's book coming to an end. The fear of your characters dying. The fear of the wonderful journey through a novel stopping.

That is one good thing about Story Wars. The stories don't have end...

the end
